that object I had been cudgeling my before 4 I strolled along to the ank, and drew out some money. On my way back I became conscious that tootsteps were dogged by a rather thabbily dressed young man, evidently police officer. Back in my rooms, I a dash for it.

The instant I stepped out into the street the watcher crossed the road, and again followed behind me. I took no notice but walked to the corner of Cranbourne street, and turned toward Leicester Square. The man sauntered behind me, believing, of course, that I was entirely unaware of his proximity. Those moments were full of breathless anxiety.

Suddenly I halted outside the Hippofrome, attracted by a large frame of photographs of a lady tightwire artist, pausing in such a manner that the watcher was forced to pass on in front of me. He was compelled to walk for a little distance, not daring to halt lest he should face me and thus attract my

Half an hour later, wrapped in a thick ready-made frieze overcoat, which I had bought in the High street, I was seated in a "forty" Mercedes being driven down Spaniard's road To Hornsey we went, then through Tottenham, Wodford, Romford and on to Chelmsford, which we reached after darkness had well closed in. Without a pause we sped on, with our open exhaust roaring continually, until the young chauffeur and I reached the Cups at Colchester, where we turned and had tea and cold meat.

Then in half an hour we were on the road again heading for Harwich, arriving at Parkeston quay at about 10 o'clock. Thus we accomplished th hundred-mile run in five hours, the length of time taken being on account of the first half of the journey being entirely by byroads where we three times lost our way.

STRATFORD

Judge Peck's court room was crowded yesterday morning with a cloud of witnesses and spectators, all interested in the assault case of one Samuel Grindrod, who rushed for a little boy named George Pitts, pushed him off the sidewalk, kicked him, and then nearly choked him to death, threatening all the time to drag him to Stratford center. This encounter took place near the car barns on Stratford avenue, and was not only seen by the mother and grandmother of the boy. nue, and was not only seen by the mother and grandmother of the boy, but by many of the employes of the trolley company, who were in the lunch cart or near at hand. The trolley men rushed to the rescue of the boy when Grindrod threatened to arrest them. Asked to show his authority as an officer, and not doing so, they opened his coat and found he had no badge. He was simply putting up a bluff, and according to the testimony he talked to Mrs. Pitts in a most shameful manner. This Grindmost shameful manner. This Grindrod has been before the court several times, and is known to the officers of the law. An attempt was made to prove that the boy Pitts had used insulting language to Grindrod, but the case fell through and on the recommendation of the public prosecutor it was noised. The judge found Grindrod guilty and fined him $5 and costs and sent him to jall for 30 days. An appeal was taken and bonds furnished in the sum of $200. in the sum of $200.

During the Grindrod examination a telephone message was received from Mrs. Alvord to the effect that the sheriff was wanted, since her chickens were dying by the wholesale, and she had reason to suppose they had been

According to the girl's story they were on their way to Walnut Beach to visit a relative, but stopped at Avon Park and got something to drink. By the time they reached East Broadway the spirits had gone to their heads and they were no longer responsible for their actions. The index dismissed the girl with a reprimand and the man was fined $2 and costs, the whole amounting to $12. He was allowed to go to work to earn money to pay the fine.

It is expected that the town meeting this evening will be very interesting. There are those in town who have expressed the fear that there is really no intention of building a new school house for the Hollister Heights district. The action of the voters will decide the question. The town is hardly likely to break faith with the public. It may come hard to raise thirty or forty thousand dollars, but such is the situation.

The time for rally days is now at hand, with the hope of getting all the children into Sunday schools, and the Methodists lead off on the 25th inst.
